HIGHLIGHTS OF THE STATE LIBRARY MEETING, SEPTEMBER 29—OCTOBER 1, 1955

The thirty-third annual conference was favored with the presence of national celebrities in the library world. This is the first time Arkansas has been graced by the visit of an American Library Association president during his or her term of office. The principal address given by Mr. John Richards—"Libraries in a Changing World", will be carried in the April issue of ARKANSAS LIBRARIES. Miss Julia Bennett, A.L.A. representative to Washington, D. C., delivered an important and hopeful message: "1956 is the Year". Mrs. Shirley K. Stephenson of the LSU Library School faculty gave an inspiring talk at the breakfast honoring recent library school graduates of Arkansas. The last mentioned talk is reprinted in this issue. Tape recordings for a talk which Mrs. Stephenson made to the School section meeting and for other talks during the 1955 conference are available on request from the Arkansas Library Commission.

PROFESSIONAL LIBRARY MEMBERSHIP

Do we value our membership in professional library associations? Librarians in Arkansas can derive much benefit from belonging to our own state organization and to the American Library Association. The initials are the same, you will notice, but there is a difference in the size and structure of the two organizations. With annual membership in the national association comes a year's subscription to its official mouthpiece, the ALA BULLETIN, together with the privilege of attending both the Midwinter Conference in Chicago and the Annual Meeting at various places during the summer. Membership in the ALA is graduated according to salary schedule. Mrs. Karl Neal, executive secretary and librarian, Arkansas Library Commission, is membership chairman for Arkansas. Write to her for membership blanks.

Members of the Arkansas Library Association are also entitled to receive a subscription to the state library bulletin, ARKANSAS LIBRARIES, and to attend the annual conference with programs planned for all groups represented in the general membership. Our state library association members are automatically members of a larger multi-state association—the Southwest Regional Library Association. They are entitled to receive through this automatic membership a subscription to the quarterly SWL NEWSLETTER. Send your state library association dues, $2.00 per year, to Mrs. Hazel Frichard, treasurer, Hope, Arkansas. Besides these explicit advantages that accrue to membership in the several professional library associations open to Arkansas librarians, there are other worthwhile advantages—personal, social and intangible—to be had from belonging to these groups.

See last page for Association Membership blank!

REFERENCE MATERIALS WORKSHOPS

One-day workshops to be held during February and March for the study of reference materials in the public library are being planned by the Arkansas Library Commission. The staff members of county, regional, public libraries in the state are invited to attend the workshops in their area. The day's program will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning at each place.

March 6—Monticello

Southeast Arkansas Regional Library and Monticello A & M College.

February 21—Arkadelphia

Clark County Library and Henderson State Teachers College.

February 17—Fayetteville

Washington County Library and University of Arkansas.

February 28—Jonesboro

Craighead County Library and Arkansas State College.

SWLA IN OKLAHOMA CITY 1956

Miss Patricia Paylore, SWLA President, has announced that the 1956 biennial conference will be held in Oklahoma City. The dates for the meeting have been set for October 10, 11, and 12. Mark the date and place on your calendar and plan to visit Oklahoma in '56. For a complete week of Oklahoma hospitality you may want to watch OU beat Texas in their annual gridiron classic. The game will be in Dallas, October 13.

"OPERATION LIBRARY"

by

Cecil Edmonds¹

"Operation Library", a program of assistance to local libraries by the Arkansas Junior Chamber of Commerce, was conceived when a Jaycee group in West Memphis became interested in aiding the local library in that city. Through contacts made with representatives from the Arkansas Library Commission it was learned that the state organization could be of assistance to libraries all over Arkansas, and last August the proposal for the project was made and adopted at the quarterly board meeting in Pine Bluff, Arkansas.

Since that time considerable time and effort has been expended in setting up local committee chairmen in various communities and educating Jaycee members as to the needs of their libraries and the relation of the library to the community.

Members of the Library Commission subsequently visited the Jaycee board meeting in Jonesboro during the month of November and gave the program added impetus.

Although the program is only four months old at this writing there have been already many concrete results. Perhaps the most noteworthy accomplishment was the passage of the one-mill tax for library support by the citizens of West Memphis Junior Chamber of Commerce. The Jaycees of West Memphis had also enlisted the aid of every civic organization in the city and campaigned vigorously for the passage of the proposal. The measure was passed by a 14-to-1 majority.

Local chairmen appointed thus far:

| George Green | DeWitt, Arkansas |
| Billy S. Veazy | Hamburg, Arkansas |
| Clyde Dollar | Fort Smith, Arkansas |

| Gene Hohlfelder | Benton, Arkansas |
| Reuben Bryant | Springdale, Arkansas |
| Fred Hunt | Little Rock, Arkansas |
| Herman Storey | Blytheville, Arkansas |
| David McDonald, Jr. | Stuttgart, Arkansas |

This is only about a third of the clubs, but others are expected to make appointments shortly.

A TESTAMENT OF FAITH

by

Shirley Knowles Stephenson¹

Sidney Herbert Wood, retired official of the British Ministry of Education, applies three acid tests to the educated man. "Can he entertain a new idea?" "Can he entertain another person?" "Can he entertain himself?" Certainly the members of the Arkansas Library Association have measured up in a high degree to these tests. May I say that I have never known more gracious hospitality! I am truly happy to be here. I will gladly testify to your ability to entertain others! You have proved also your ability to entertain yourselves. This breakfast is testimony to your capacity for entertaining and for accepting and implementing a new idea. To entertain in this manner honoring the new members of the profession is certainly a new idea. In most instances persons work twenty-five to forty-five years before being honored.

The honorees are graduates of several library schools including Peabody, Texas State College for Women, East Texas State Teachers College, and the University of Michigan.

I bring you greetings especially from the Library School at Louisiana State University. The members of our faculty are with us in spirit. They have asked me to express their good wishes to you. I am sure that the faculties of all the library schools whose graduates are being honored today are equally close to us.

Since I have an abiding faith in the library school graduate, I am delighted to participate in this celebration honoring both the young graduate just entering the field of library service, and the more experienced graduate, who is taking a larger post of responsibility upon the completion of his academic program. Librarianship needs and welcomes these graduates and extends the warmest wishes for their professional success and personal happiness. May this occasion represent, for each graduate, the laying of the cornerstone for a life of service and tremendous personal satisfaction in your chosen profession. May your library education prove its power in supporting your professional efforts.

My belief in the Library School graduate is usually expressed in a classroom. In providing an education experience which prepares the graduate to assume his professional responsibilities, it has been my sincere conviction that faith in the learner and a favorable academic climate are necessary to bring about fruition of personal talent. True educational activities and experiences bring satisfaction to the learner and strength to our profession. My faith in students has been justified again and again as I have seen the growth of ideas, the advancement of thought, the development of greater personal values among the students. Such outcomes of library education are achieved by students who recognize worthwhile goals.

Professional education focuses attention upon the library's opportunities and responsibilities in developing programs to help clarify issues and strengthen democratic processes. We believe in the library as a "social intelligence center". Library service is increasingly concerned with the entire problem of communication. The library seeks to give assistance and provide services which will help individuals and groups to achieve their goals, to find answers to their questions, and to further capacities for understanding and communicating ideas.

The power of the public library is being felt in many communities in a new and forceful manner through such programs as the American Heritage discussion groups. Great Issues, Great Books, or pertinent community problems are subjects for consideration by the study and discussion groups which meet in the library or are served by the library.

MIDWINTER MEETING, Chicago

The Midwinter meeting of the American Library Association will be held at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, Chicago, January 31-February 4, 1956. This is the business meeting and gives one opportunity to learn about the national library program.

Education for librarianship emphasizes the place of group activities in library service, and the value of understanding group dynamics in meeting the challenge of today's world. Library education stresses equally the techniques needed in serving the individual patron. Librarians today recognize the importance of improving services through more effective counselor librarianship; therefore, education for librarianship includes the study of principles of guidance and techniques in the counseling relationship.

The students being honored today know that library education advocates seeking greater understanding of themselves and of others, as well as the realm of print, film and records, as a basis of effective library service.

Dr. Harry A. Overstreet has set up certain guide posts for improving human relations in The Mature Mind, and in collaboration with Mrs. Overstreet in The Mind Alive. The concepts expressed by Dr. and Mrs. Overstreet are useful suggestions toward achieving greater stature as individuals through effective "human action and interaction". General education today seeks to aid each individual in achieving mental health and maturity. The mature mind is necessary for genuine and satisfying success. Each person needs a mind which is truly alive to become involved in the main stream of life.

Librarianship needs the strength of the mature mind to become fully involved in a program which will challenge the patrons of the library, be that library a school, public, or special agency.

Each person needs the resilience which is a mark of mental health.

Dr. Overstreet indicates that the mind which is fully alive has at its core something that can best be called "Faith". Such faith, according to Dr. Overstreet, "grants both enough courage to run the risk of becoming involved in life and feeling strongly about it, and enough resilience to recover from the hurts that involvement and sensitivity invite".

The growth and development of an individual, or of a program, depends upon interest and involvement. Our profession has accepted the challenge of involvement. Librarianship moves forward to extend its areas of involvement toward the goal of the good of all mankind. The graduates being honored this morning represent added dynamic force. They need the strength, courage, confidence and guidance of established library leaders.

I am sure from my contacts with this group, and from my knowledge of your program and your activities, that Arkansas is already dedicated to the development of a program of library service which is designed and directed toward realizing the greatest rewards for the patrons of the library and the personnel of each agency. From the pages to the presidents of your boards, from the crossroads bookmobile stops to the dynamic chairman and the distinguished trustees of the Commission, your work is both inspired and inspiring.

Your planned tours for professional growth in service certainly benefit both the persons making the tours and the institutions being visited. This aspect of your inservice training program deserves a special award of merit.

A thoughtfully planned, well directed orientation program, and an inspiring and informational inservice training program will foster staff interests and pay high dividends in individual performance.

Charles H. Percy, a distinguished American industrialist, stated on the "This I Believe" series:

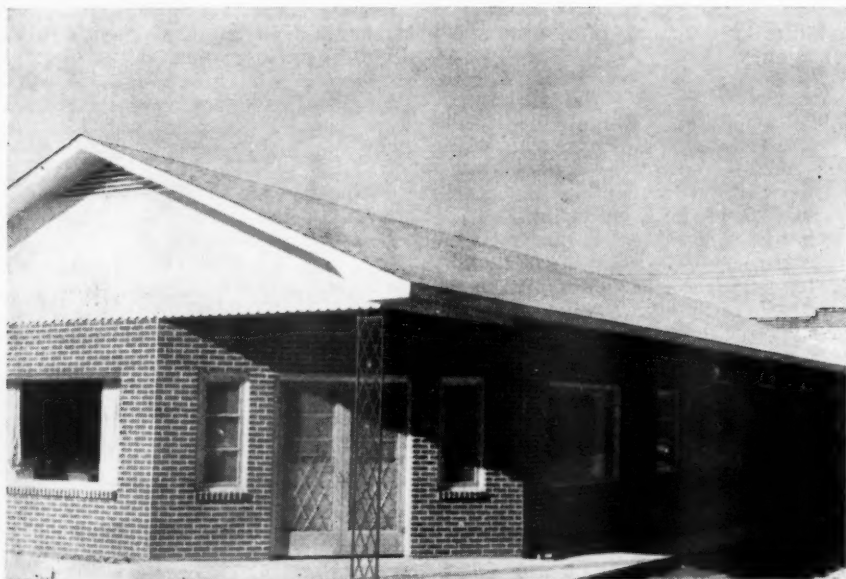

"I believe that faith is seldom disappointed—whether it be faith in God or faith in our fellow man. To expect the best of a man is almost assurance that you will receive it!"

Mr. Percy says, "When I give a man a job to do, I leave that job to him. It is his responsibility—his is the credit or the blame for what he makes of it. Generally no two people do a thing in the same way. Every man brings to a problem a fresh point of view and a new approach. The value of individual effort and thinking can never be overestimated. Once a man knows that his opinions are respected, his ideas are valued, his energy and mind are turned to constructive interest in his work. Once we recognize that every individual is a treasury of hidden and unsuspected qualities, our life becomes richer, our judgment better and our world is more right". Mr. Percy states in conclusion that "it is only the unnoticing eye that cannot truly see the real qualities of man."

Dr. Harry Overstreet recently stated, "Socrates gave no finished catalogue of the truths of the world. He gave rather the impulse to search. This is far better . . . than dogmatic certainty. When we are aware that there are glories of life still hidden from us, we walk humbly before the great unknown. But we do more than this, we try to increase our powers of seeing and feeling so that we can turn what is still unknown into what is warmly and understandably known."

This, Dr. Overstreet believes, is "our great human adventure".

May we wish each graduate being honored today, a great and glorious human adventure in library service.

ASHLEY COUNTY LIBRARY DEDICATES NEW BUILDING

by

Ann Veazey, Librarian

Today folks visited the Ashley County Library. The new building is the stuff dreams are made of. Well, to the folks here, anyway. It is a realized dream, a miracle made possible by many different things—the largest of which has been the background work of librarians and other interested people over the state of Arkansas who were far-sighted enough to secure proper legislation for a steady and certain-as-tax income.

One approaches a red brick structure topped by a brilliant white roof with the feeling that its newness alone is a definite asset to its surroundings. Then as the details of the building exterior soak in, one decides that—new or old—the building is just plain pretty. The iron grill-post roof support adds the finishing touch. As the open door reveals the interior of the library you cannot withhold a bit of surprise that the floor plan is so arranged to give a spacious look, for the building itself is quite small, as libraries go. In the 25-by-70 feet of floor space there is room enough to hold 17,000 volumes of books, adequate furniture, a central heating and cooling unit, and still have walking, reading, and browsing areas.

The colors blend together to please even the most critical eye. Walls finished in shades of flamingo graduated into carnation pink are highlighted by the window draperies which pick up these same colors. The furniture tones range from white pine to light oak, with dark green and chartreuse upholstery on the lounge chairs. With a background of light grey, the asphalt tile floor covering repeats the shades of color on the walls, and the woodwork copies the light oak finish of the furniture. There is a work room with wall cabinets, and a private office with a side entrance for loading and unloading.

Reading areas follow the conventional arrangement. New fiction and ready reference are at the front entrance, with the children's reading table near the center of the room. The Rojandovsky nursery prints that line the wall above the special picture book shelving catch the eye of all who enter, and are a real source of delight to the children. The back floor space holds the rows of steel shelving where the major book collections are kept. There are two steel vertical file cabinets on the back wall to complete the library detail.

It is hard to describe the impressions people get on first entering a new library building. Perhaps from these actual comments overheard at the official opening you can guess the general reaction:

First commentator: "You have the feeling that you are in someone's lovely home".

Second commentator: "What I like is the cozy atmosphere one immediately feels".

Answers to several questions asked about the enterprise revealed some surprising facts. The building, shelving, furniture, central heating and air conditioning, sidewalks, draperies—the whole package—cost a few dollars under $20,000. It was a worthwhile venture that county people pitched their monies together to create for the many a pleasant place to promote the cultural advancement of Ashley County.

AT THE UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA

The University of Florida Libraries is offering three graduate assistantships in the academic year 1956-57 for study leading to a master or doctoral degree in a subject field other than library science. Graduate assistants work approximately 15 hours per week in the Library, assisting in bibliographical research or library administration.

Stipend is $1,200 for a nine-month period and holders of assistantships are exempt from out-of-state tuition fees. The deadline for filing formal application is March 31, 1956.

Inquiries are invited, especially from librarians or students in library schools who are interested in advanced work in subject fields. Applications should be made to: Director of Libraries, University of Florida, Gainesville, Florida.

COMMENTS THAT COUNT

"The library system is an outstanding state service of which Arkansas can be justly proud, and which should be more widely known . . . It's our library, and the librarians will become our friends and neighbors. We hope many, many others will come to know them."—So writes Mrs. C. R. Beeler, seasoned traveller who with her husband has recently retired to the "green wonderland" of Polk county, near Mena, Arkansas.

The quotation is from a letter to the editor which appeared in both the Arkansas Gazette and Arkansas Democrat commending the service of the Arkansas Library Commission.
